BLANTON: Son of missing couple is arrested

Price said. "I knew his dad's prescription was scheduled to be filled on the fifth, so I contacted the local pharmacies and asked them to alert our office if anyone came in to fill them, and they did. He also attempted to fill his girlfriend's prescription for Suboxone. He said he was her boyfriend and was going to pick it up for her, but she was in jail. He tried to say that they lied and that he hadn't called, but I checked his cell phone and he called three times. I also asked him whether he had heard anything from his parents and he said he hadn't and that he has no idea where they are."

Price had also previously arranged for the couple to have a polygraph test after authorities used rescue and cadaver dogs to search the missing couple's 50-acre farm and one of the cadaver dogs reportedly hit in two locations, but found nothing.

"They came back and told me that they had been advised by a friend who is an attorney, not that they have legal counsel, but they said a friend who is an attorney advised them to not take it," Price said. "So, they didn't take it."

During the search in which the rescue and cadaver dogs were involved, a cadaver dog reportedly hit on a scent at a location in the barn and again next to the creek, Price said after the search.

"The dogs had on tracking collars, so they can supplement my case," Price also said.

Price couldn't go into detail about exactly where in the barn nor along the creek that the scent was picked up, but did say that there are other tests that can be done and that he would be following up on them.

Willie Blanton lives in a trailer owned by the couple on the property and has alleged to authorities that the last time he saw his parents was at approximately 7 p.m. Sept. 5. He said they were in an unknown blue Nissan, claiming they were going to go to Florida on vacation and get away for a while.

Price also said that Willie Blanton has access to the barn and that one of the horses kept there belongs to him.

During a previous interview, Price said although the couple allegedly went on vacation, their car, credit cards, cell phones and clothing are still at their Pigeon Creek of Oil Springs residence.

"They still have not used any of their finances," Price said Tuesday.

When Price interviewed Willie Blanton he said that he had seen his parents the Sunday prior to their being reported as missing by Sandra Blanton's mother, at which time they were supposedly driving a blue Nissan and told him they were going to Florida on vacation.

Larry Blanton is described as being approximately 6 feet tall, weighing 200 pounds, with blue eyes and gray hair. Sandra Blanton is described as being 5'7" tall, weighing 135 pounds, with green eyes and brown hair.

"We are still looking for any kind of information that will help us locate the couple," Price said. "We appreciate all the help we can get."

Anyone with information as to the couple's whereabouts is asked to contact the Johnson County Sheriff's Office at (606) 789-3411. Callers can remain anonymous.

coal annually to electric utilities in the eastern United States.

In August, Gov. Steve Beshear announced that Booth is part of an agreement with a New Jersey company to provide coal to India. The new private-sector agreement will help produce "affordable, reliable energy to one of the world's fastest-growing economies for the next 25 years," Beshear said.

Booth said at the time that the agreement will create and sustain Kentucky jobs.

Over the years, Booth and his associates also entered into the retail industry. Combined, the mining operations and retail operations employ approximately 2,100 personnel in the eastern region of Kentucky and southern West Virginia.

"I am very humbled and gracious that my colleagues have selected me to Chair the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce for the 2012-2013 Calendar year," Booth said in a statement. "I look forward to working with David Adkisson, President of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and our Board to move Kentucky forward. The Kentucky Chamber Board and Staff have a lot of creative ideas on how to improve our Commonwealth and I look forward to having the opportunity to steer this prestigious Chamber group. I'd like to personally recognize Luther Deaton, Chairman, President & CEO of Central Bank and Trust Co. Luther is our Past Kentucky Chamber Chairman, who has done an outstanding job in leading the Chamber to prominence during his tenure. I would also like to recognize Mary Pat Regan, President of AT&T Kentucky, for being elected to the Chair-elect position with the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce. Mary Pat Regan will be the incoming Chairperson serving her tenure during the 2013-2014 calendar year. I wish Mary Pat Regan the very best in her new post and look forward to working with her this year."

Grayson Boyd

Boyd inducted into KAAC Hall of Fame

PAINTSVILLE — Former Paintsville High School principal Grayson Boyd was inducted Sept. 27 into the Kentucky Association for Academic Competition (KAAC) Hall of Fame.

The induction ceremony was held during the luncheon of the KAAC Conference, the largest gathering of academic competition coaches in the world.

Eligibility for the KAAC Hall of Fame is based on accomplishments, contributions and service. Academic coaches are considered on the merits of their coaching achievements and contributions. Administrators are evaluated on their long-term contributions to the furtherance of academic competition on a local, regional or statewide basis.

Boyd was nominated because of his “unselfish dedication to academics in the Paintsville Independent School District,” a press release said.

“For four decades Mr. Boyd has been the pillar of academic strength in the district’s community,” the release said. “As a teacher and administrator in the Paintsville District, he has provided support, organization, leadership, and has been a liaison to KAAC. He has served on the KAAC Board of Directors, where he currently holds a position representing Eastern Kentucky. Mr. Boyd upholds the highest standards in everything he does, providing the district and region with integrity, dependability, and fairness. He has provided long-term support for the Paintsville school system and for all of Eastern Kentucky with his passion for academic competition.”

content. Two jurors are going to define how it works. It could be that they come back and say that it is a privacy issue, hire an attorney and it would take another turn.”

Preston said there was another occasion in Lawrence County where he had received into evidence Facebook messages, but that he didn’t know how they had come up with it.

“We may have violated their privacy, but the issue never was brought up,” Preston said. “It appears if they think they have privacy, they are sadly mistaken.”

Skeans explained that there is information on Facebook that is visible to friends and that it is determined by the user how much information can be viewed by everyone. He said that there are other messages that are only visible to the person to whom they are sent.

“How are we going to accomplish this in the 45 days we have left?” Preston asked. “No communications is fairly easy.”

Preston scheduled the hearing for Nov. 13, saying Nov. 20 is the last possible date available under the Supreme Court order. He said he had other cases pending during that time and it might be wise to allow a little time for unforeseen circumstances.

Skeans said he is going to issue subpoenas for both jurors in question and let them know that the court is seeking all of their Facebook communications, both public and private.

“If there are communications, it could change anything,” Preston said.

“I’m going to do a production order as quickly as possible,” Skeans said.

“If you ask me, the foreperson is the bigger issue,” Preston said.

Both Skeans and Sluss’ attorney, Jerry Patton, agreed.

The Supreme Court issued an opinion Sept. 20 ordering that a hearing be scheduled in Martin Circuit Court within 60 days to determine whether the two jurors answered questions truthfully during voir dire. Sluss had filed an appeal of his conviction in which he raised 16 issues.

The court concluded that the trial court erred in not giving full consideration to Sluss’ claim of juror misconduct, “which is founded on a question of first impression alleging that jurors may have lied during voir dire and juror bias through the use of social media websites, namely Facebook.”

“The case is therefore remanded to Martin Circuit Court to hold a hearing on whether the jurors answered voir dire questions truthfully, and, if not, the extent of exposure the jurors had to the Facebook account of the victim’s mother, and whether that exposure, if any, tainted the jurors to such extent that it was a miscarriage of justice to allow them to participate as jurors in Sluss’ trial,” the opinion said.

Tax amnesty program begins

FRANKFORT — In an effort to collect tens of millions of dollars owed to the commonwealth in back taxes, Gov. Steve Beshear last week announced the kick-off of Kentucky's Tax Amnesty program.

Through the end of November, most people and businesses that owe overdue taxes to the commonwealth can apply for amnesty. This means they can pay up without facing penalties or fees and owe only half the interest due.

"This is a great way to add significant revenue to the state budget in a short amount of time," said Beshear. "Offering amnesty also helps responsible taxpayers who've faced tough times and want to get out of trouble a way to meet their obligations and save them significant money. They can pay now or pay more later."

While the current database shows nearly 170,000 individuals and businesses qualifying for tax amnesty, others may also owe back taxes. The list of delinquent debtors includes those businesses and individuals who have a tax lien on file, but does not include those who may owe taxes and have not filed. The state is continuously gathering taxpayer information to discover non-filers and under-reporters.

Each individual and business taking advantage of Tax Amnesty will save an average of 30 percent of what they would otherwise be charged. The average delinquent taxpayer owes about $5,000, while the average tax debt for a delinquent business is $25,000.

Those who don't apply for amnesty will face higher penalties plus owe an additional 2 percent in interest. Amnesty participants must remain current on their taxes over the next three years or face reinstated penalties, fees and interest.

Ten years ago, the commonwealth conducted a similar amnesty program. That program included 140,000 delinquent taxpayers and netted the state some $41 million.

"We are continually identifying delinquent taxpayers in order to maximize the amount we collect. We expect to bring in more than we did in 2002," said Finance and Administration Cabinet Secretary Lori H. Flanery. "If anyone has any questions about whether they owe, we encourage them to call us or visit a special website we've developed just for Tax Amnesty."

The toll-free hotline set up by the Department of Revenue to handle Tax Amnesty questions is 855-KYTAXES (855-598-2937). The website – www.amnesty.ky.gov – provides more information and has a searchable database of delinquent taxpayers. It also has all forms needed to apply for amnesty.

"We're making it as easy as possible for people to determine if they owe back taxes and to create multiple ways to pay," said Tom Miller, Commissioner, Kentucky Department of Revenue. "They can mail in the payment or use a credit card. They can pay at any of our 10 offices around the state, or they can pay online using a website we have created just for Tax Amnesty."

The amnesty program applies to taxes owed only to the Kentucky Department of Revenue for eligible tax periods ending after December 1, 2001 and prior to October 1, 2011. While most on the delinquent tax roll reside in Kentucky, the list includes people in all 50 states plus several other countries.

A new advertising campaign with the theme "Good For You, Good For Kentucky," will help generate awareness and spread the word about Tax Amnesty across the Commonwealth. In addition to newspaper, TV and online ads, Department of Revenue officials will make presentations to numerous groups and appear at public events.

We love you and miss you and we still grieve but not as those who have no hope, because we know you are asleep in Jesus and if we could hear - we know your new song maybe says words like these:

Oh, I can speak the matchless worth.
Oh, I can sound the glories forth which in my Savior shine,
I soar and touch the heavenly strings on notes almost divine.

I sing the precious blood He spilt,
my ransom from the dreadful guilt

I sing His glorious righteousness and in all perfect heavenly dress my soul shall ever shine.

Browse like Bond: How to surf the Web like a spy

by Kim Komando

Kim Komando hosts the nation's largest talk radio show about consumer electronics, computers and the Internet.

When you surf the Internet, everyone is watching.

Tracking companies, search engines and social networks try to learn your habits for advertising purposes. Your Internet service provider monitors every move to make sure you're not doing anything illegal.

A government analyst somewhere might think you're "interesting" because of a suspicious phrase you used in a tweet.

On the other side of the law, there are scammers and hackers waiting to pounce on any opportunity to steal your identity and your money.

Many people believe there's nothing they can do to prevent such snooping. A master spy like James Bond can browse the Internet without leaving a trace — sure — but not regular folks.

Well, it's not as hard as you may think to browse anonymously and preserve your privacy. All you need are a few tools and some coaching in covert ops.

That's where I come in. Just call me Komando...Kim Komando.

Spy trainee

Hackers use viruses to exploit your computer and steal personal information. Your first line of defense is to always keep a clean machine and make sure your security software is up to date. I have plenty of excellent free security software in my Security Center.

When you surf, your browser keeps a record of where you go, what you search for, and what you download. It also stores cookies, which can improve the functionality of websites and track you. Wipe out this information with a program like CCleaner.

Or make sure it isn't recorded in the first place. The next time you want to kill an hour watching a puppy cam without leaving a digital footprint on your computer, toggle to private or incognito browsing mode. All major browsers have it listed in the program's main menu.

Private browsing prevents history and cookies from being saved on your computer, but it does nothing to mask your Internet identity.

For that, you need to advance to the next level.

Field agent

When you go online, your ISP gives your computer a unique Internet protocol address. Individual computers and Web servers need these addresses to exchange data.

An IP address doesn't identify you personally, but it reveals which ISP you use and your general geographic location. That's how Google brings up a list and a map of the nearest Safeway and Albertsons when all you searched for was "grocery stores."

Of course, your ISP records your IP address and the IP addresses of the sites you visit. It could know your entire Web history!

Thankfully, there are ways you can disguise your IP address.

A Web-based proxy server allows you to enter the address of a site you want to visit. The proxy service requests the website and displays it for you.

The site you visit can't see or track you. And your ISP doesn't know where you've gone either!

Web-based proxies work entirely through your browser. There's no need to download software or reconfigure settings.

There's little, if any, security in the connection, however. Don't use a proxy to send sensitive data. And be aware: Some apps that

HRMC Poker Run held Sept. 22

Highlands Health System held its third annual poker run Sept. 22, raising over $2,420 in funds. This year's event included 74 motorcycles, many with two riders. All participants received a 20 percent discount coupon on Honda parts and accessories at Honda of Prestonsburg. The ride began at Highlands Regional Medical Center as riders met there and left promptly at 11 a.m. and traveled to Honda of Prestonsburg. There, riders took a short break and browsed the latest Honda motorcycles and products. Next, riders drove to Harley Davidson of Pikeville for a second break. They returned to the hospital, where Highlands hosted a cookout. Organized by Jimmy Williamson, the director of facility services at Highlands Regional Medical Center, the purpose of the event was to raise more for scholarship funds, allowing more students to participate in the Center for Autism's treatment program. "It was heart-warming to see so many Highlands employees, parents and riders who volunteered their Saturday in support of this effort," Shelli Deskins, director of the Center for Autism, said. "Highlands supports many projects such as the Poker Run with the goal of raising funds for scholarships that deserving children and families need. We are lucky to have a program of this caliber in our Eastern Kentucky community, and support of this nature is essential for the Center to continue its important work."

Deskins named chair of Kentucky Applied Behavior Analyst Licensing Board

PRESTONSBURG — Highlands Center for Autism program director Shelli Deskins Ph.D, BCBA, was named chair of the Kentucky Applied Behavior Analyst Licensing Board.

Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) is a philosophy that involves and systematic application of methods based upon behavioral principles. Importantly, it has been effective when applied to working with individuals with Autism Spectrum Disorders (ASD). The intervention process is focused on setting up the environment, reducing behavioral symptoms, and increasing functional replacement skills.

The board consists of seven members chosen by Gov. Steve Beshear, with chair being the highest appointed honor. The purpose of the board is to administer and enforce the statutory authority and to monitor the needs of the public. The board examines and licenses all eligible candidates for entry into the profession as a behavior analyst. It recommends appropriate changes in the law to assure fairness and equality.

Highlands Health System began consulting with the Cleveland Clinic Center for Autism (CCCCA) to open a year-round day treatment center for children with ASD in September of 2008. Dr. Deskins joined Highlands in January 2009. This endeavor resulted in the creation of the Highlands Center for Autism, which opened in August 2009. The Highlands Center for Autism believes all children deserve the opportunity to laugh and play and become healthy, happy and productive adults. In order for children with ASD to reach these goals, it is important that children and their families have access to specially designed intervention and support, using ABA. The Center treats all children as individuals; hence, programming is tailored to meet each child's specific needs. Data is taken on every skill taught and analyzed on a daily basis so that programming modifications can be made when indicated. Furthermore, the center is committed to working closely with other professionals, such as speech language pathologists, educators, and pediatricians in order to provide an optimal level of care, officials said.

work within browsers, such as Flash and Java, can also betray your IP address while you're using a proxy.

If you want to take the next step, you can download a proxy system like Tor. This routes all your Internet traffic through volunteer servers around the world. No one can track you!

If you're authorized to use your home computer to access your company or school network, you're using a virtual private network. Many VPN providers offer subscriptions to individuals.

A VPN will cost you, but you gain a high level of encryption, more reliability and greater integration with your gadgets. In addition to anonymous and secure web browsing, your email and chats are also safe, even if you're using public Wi-Fi.

Why do I share this? To help you enhance your privacy and security. What you do online really is no one's business unless you want to make it their business. But please don't get the idea that a VPN or proxy server will let you get away with illegal activities. Law enforcement can subpoena the records of ISPs and VPN providers and trace suspicious activity to your home computer.

Master spies always keep a secret cache of currency and fake passports in case they get into a jam and need to drop out of sight. They also need a way to anonymously use any computer that's handy.

That's possible with a bootable USB stick or DVD loaded with Tails (The Amnesiac Incognito Live System). The free, open-source package bypasses a computer's internal operating system and hard drive.

Tails was developed to allow journalists and human rights advocates stationed in oppressive regimes to work and communicate safely.

The live-boot Linux operating system works on Macs and PCs. A built-in, customized browser takes advantage of the previously mentioned Tor network.

Browser extensions block ads, Java and Flash. Other tools in the package encrypt your email and instant messages. There's even free productivity software, such as OpenOffice and more, if you need to get a top secret report done.

PAINTSVILLE — Under bright sunny skies, 56 golfers ushered in the first day of fall by participating in the Paul B. Hall Scholarship Golf Scramble at the Paintsville Golf Course.

The scramble is the Hall Foundation's only fundraiser to benefit its scholarship fund.

The foundation awards one-year college scholarships to young golfers who use the Paintsville Golf Course.

Since 2004, close to $20,000 in scholarship money has been distributed to students from Johnson Central, Paintsville, and Sheldon Clark high schools.

These scholarships honor Dr. Paul B. Hall and Dr. Bob Hall, who were strong advocates for youth golf.
